Ted Moore, Executive Director of Humphreys County Economic Development Council, Receives TEDC Honorary Life Member Award

JACKSON, TN - The Tennessee Economic Development Council (TEDC) is honored to recognize Ted Moore, Executive Director of Humphreys County Economic Development Council, as an Honorary Life Member of TEDC. This award is conferred in celebration of an individual's extensive years of service in the economic development field and establishes them as a member of TEDC for the rest of their life.

Ted has been involved in economic development since the early 1990s, when he joined the Humphreys County Economic Development Council. In this time, his efforts have brought millions of dollars and hundreds of jobs into the county, reducing unemployment by almost 15% and advancing Humphreys County into the top 10 of Tennessee in per capita income.

He organized and directed the planning, fundraising and construction of the Humphreys County Center For Higher Education that now serves as a satellite campus of Nashville State Community College.

In McNairy County, Ted played a key role in combining the McNairy County Economic Development Commission and the McNairy County Chamber of Commerce into a professional non-profit organization with the goal of building and maintaining a healthy local economy and improving the quality of life for all county residents.

Awards were presented at the TEDC Fall Conference held this year in Jackson, Tennessee.

TEDC is a statewide organization for both public and private sector professionals involved in economic development. TEDC provides professional development opportunities for its more than 425 members and works with state officials to maintain an attractive business environment in Tennessee.
